AN INTERESTING DIVORCE SUIT.

How a Wife Supported a Lazy Husband. Eliza Schumann vs. Wm. Schumann. This was a suit for divorce on the ground of gross neglect and crueity. The plaintiff, a young German woman about nineteen years of age, and rather good looking, was in court. From her evidence and that of several other witnesses it appears that, when about seventeen years of are, she left Bavaria, having then 100 marks, and came to the United States. The defendant, a young man about twenty-five years old, came over in the same steamer, but they did not get acqueinted till their arrival in New York.

His parents had come with him, and he told the plaintiff they came here only to visit some of their children, and he proposed in a short time to return to Saxony, where he owned a large estate. The whole party then came on t. Cincinnati, and put up at Degenhardt's Hotel. The plaintiff and defendant then got married.

He ran up a board bill at the hotel for over a week, and had no money to pay the bill, and the plaintiff had to work there as a servant to pay the amount; he also pawned her clothes and a few articles of jeweiry, and spent the money in dissipation; they then went to Riverside for a few weeks, where she also had to work to pay He then told her his uncle in Lawrenceburg had received from Germany $500 for bim, and compelled her to walk with him snow was on the ground; they put up at a hotel, and having no money she remained at the hotel several weeks to pay up the expense, while he went to New York, on the precense of getting money.

He did not hear from himafterwards until about-four months ago, when he re-turned to Cincinnati and wanted her to go from Cincinnati to Lawrenceburg while the

with him again, which she refused, as he had no means to provide for her.

All the witnesses gave him the reputation of being a great liar. Some parties here wrote to Saxony to in-quire about the property he said he had there, and the information received was that he had been a volunteer in the German army for one year and deserted; that he was tried by Court-martial and found guilty, and at that time his estate was forfeited. It was also proved that he had committed violence upon his wif . The Court has not yet decided the case.

Wild's Wild Career.

Mr. Charles Moser, of Delphos, Ohio, came down to the city last evening on the Dayton Short Line Railroad. When he arrived here he hired an expressman named Charles Wild to convey his baggage, which consisted of a trunk and valise, to a house on Clinton street.

The expressman failed to show up, however, at Clinton street, and Mr. Moser saw no more of his bargage until this morning, in the office of the Chief of Police. There he found the trunk and value, which had been broken open, and the larger part of the contents (which consisted of about $100 worth of clothing) taken out.

The baggage had been found by police New York. Sept. 24.-The first race, hanofficers in Camp Washington at an hour this morning, together with the horse and wagon. It seems that Wild was merely the driver of the wagon, which belongs to George Hergenr ther, of No. 115 Twelfth street, and that he, instead of delivering the property of Mr. Moser, had driven to Camp Washington, where, after going through the baggage, he had abandoned the whole rig. The American "bobtail" cars recently introduced in London are a source of unalloyed joy to the juveniles of the district in which they run, as they are unprovided with conductors and afford irresistible temptations to steal a ride in security and with impunity. They do not appear to be as freely patronized as not appear to be as freely patronized as the two-horse cars, but the determination of the company to keep them as select as possible will no doubt insure their receiving their full share of patronage when the public becomes more accustomed to them.
